Anonymous: that is the next global op I am pushing for.
me: lol
me: seen it Anonymous: yeah
Anonymous: i hope we have more than like 20 people tomorrow me: and lived in Williamsburg at th etime Anonymous: the boston facebook group is over 50 rsvp's now, others who didnt do that is up to about 20 me: we can get more soon me: I plan major recruitment drive tomorrow Anonymous: TPB helped for some cities me: and of course the rally will help Anonymous: when they did that 60 more events showed up on WWP me: what;s TPB again?
Anonymous: look at http://thepiratebay.org Anonymous: right now.
Anonymous: one of the highest trafficked websites in the world?
me: sweeeet me: well done
Anonymous: its been like that since late last night Anonymous: brokep loves us Anonymous: its the 4th time he's done it for us me: I imagine he does me: we should talk to him me: about maintaining a perpetual collaboration me: have an ambassador, etc me: I've got a lot of new good people for PM so can delegate stuff now me: I told you Hastings will be covering us, right?
Anonymous: yeah
Anonymous: good times Anonymous: 107 freedom of information events setup on WWP now me: nice me: wait
me: for our rally?
Anonymous: ?
Anonymous: http://forums.whyweprotest.net/events/me: what issue Anonymous: tomorrow is the global me: okay

Anonymous: pro wikileaks, pro free press, pro free speech Anonymous: every major city me: swet me: let me know if I can assist beyond the usual Anonymous: 91 events setup for tomorrow Anonymous: 16 already setup for the months ahead Anonymous: more will be scheduled for the future after tomorrow Anonymous: thats what the TPB link is all about me: gotcha Anonymous: january 15th, pro wikileaks global rallies me: was confused, been a hectic fucking day Anonymous: http://forums.whyweprotest.net/threads/what-everyone-hopes-to-accomplish-tomorrow.67835/Anonymous: hoping that gets some good responses me: obviously I've been thinking quite a bit about the mechanics of radicalization me: as in, how to convince those who are comfortable to act in such a way as one expects from those are not comfortable me: and I've had some success with that me: if you haven't read my book yet, you should me: it's a quick read, man Anonymous: I should me: at any rate, over the next few months Anonymous: do you have it in audiobook yet? :) me: we're going to be concentrating on that question me: it's not even out yet Anonymous: i havent read a physical book in a long time me: I jumped from shitty old publisher Anonymous: I only do audio books for the most part me: got Eisler helping me get it published with one of the majors Anonymous: as in 99% of all my book learnin me: get a speaking program Anonymous: i cant seem to concentrate when im trying to read a book Anonymous: i fail hard at it me: oic Anonymous: i will ge tthrough it me: well, this book is somewhat unconventional me: just read the first page Anonymous: oh, you dont have to convince me Anonymous: i love books

Anonymous: ive been through >5000 of them now Anonymous: but 99% of that was audio books Anonymous: i have a huge collection me: so you're an aural learner?
Anonymous: indeed me: odd since you're an internet figure Anonymous: i get through one every couple days Anonymous: i have very bad insomnia Anonymous: and early on i discovered that listening to audio books while trying to get to sleep helped a ton Anonymous: and so before bed every night i start the book off from the last place i remember Anonymous: and do the same again the next night Anonymous: then start the next book Anonymous: wash rinse repeat Anonymous: since i was 12 Anonymous: 22 good years of nearly every night me: wow me: that actually sounds like it works well Anonymous: it really does me: I actually have gotten out of reading over the past two years Anonymous: only takes a minute or two to figure out where i was Anonymous: then off to bed Anonymous: i can get anywhere from 2-5 hours into a book at night me: as I either write, read online, or play games like Morrowind Anonymous: but the last half at least is me nearly asleep Anonymous: so its way more useful than where i would be me: I used to be a big gamer but then I only had a netbook for a while Anonymous: without the book, i lay there for 8 hours wondering why i cant sleep me: Now I have this fucking boss gaming laptop Anonymous: yeah
Anonymous: i used to game, a long time ago me: yeah, that's why I smoke weed and used to be a heroin addict Anonymous: i havent done anything in a good 8 years me: Hastings was also an addict Anonymous: the audio books really do the trick me: cocaine, alcohol and crack though Anonymous: they are my drug heh me: maybe I should start listening to audio books in the background Anonymous: im like the only person i know involved in this who wasnt an addict at one point in his life Anonymous: the only thing im addicted to is caffine me: well, I won't lie - if it weren't for me being a heroin addict up until recently, never would have started Project PM me: the sad truth is that heroin is helpful to any writer or anyone who is ambitious, at least as long as the money is there me: but I ran out of money me: and could have continued anyway but realized that Project PM was taking off and needed my consistent leadership Anonymous: the most ambitious people i know in my life were all 3 at one point in there life on heroin Anonymous: i find it strange as hell Anonymous: but it seems to be a running trend me: and I've got a lot of relatives who fought in military, including my brother, so it would have been dishonorable for me to chase pleasure over duty Anonymous: i've never even tasted alcohol me: yeah, heroin is common affliction among those who seek to change things Anonymous: let alone a drug me: jesus christ, really?

me: never tasted alcohol?
Anonymous: not one single puff off a cigarette, nothing Anonymous: correct Anonymous: no beer, no wine, no nothing me: why is that?
Anonymous: things i did Anonymous: i went to prison in a plea for them so they could save some face Anonymous: not because i had to Anonymous: they had no case Anonymous: and they let me plead out to simple copyright heh me: how old were you?
Anonymous: i started doing bad things at 13 Anonymous: they busted me at 19 Anonymous: but they got me for what they hoped was way worse me: I see Anonymous: and ended up slowly over 6 years not being able to build their case up strong enough to want me in front of a judge me: all hacking?
Anonymous: 90% of it had nothing to do with computers
me: I see
Anonymous: computers were used for some coordination Anonymous: tons of real life crime fun! heh Anonymous: but it put me in a strange postition Anonymous: i knew to much about to many things and people Anonymous: at a young age

Anonymous: and when alcohol become a big peer pressure thing Anonymous: i knew that losing my wits, opening my mouth, or anything else Anonymous: would not be smart Anonymous: so i stayed away from it early Anonymous: after a few years of avoiding it for a good set of reasons Anonymous: it was easy to just continue tat until now Anonymous: tat/that Anonymous: the reasons are still the same Anonymous: i just cant allow myself moments where i am not perfectly clear minded and in complete control.
me: understood me: Penn and Teller are same way me: we need to get them, speaking of which me: Isaac Asimov, too me: I mean, was same way
Anonymous: yeah
me: we won't recruit his zombie Anonymous: if they fuck up the foundation movies i will muder somebody Anonymous: murder too me: oh snap me: they're making those?
Anonymous: yep
Anonymous: LOTR style me: Fucking Foundation Anonymous: multiple movies across multiple years me: I read it when I was like 10 Anonymous: is the deal me: and the first part me: changed my life me: set me on this course Anonymous: the movies are coming Anonymous: so yeah
Anonymous: if they fuck that up Anonymous: shits going down.
me: the ending when they'd tricked the barbarians me: by controlling the "priests" of the nukes
Anonymous: yeah
Anonymous: i love his writing me: my uncle, Professor Chuck Marsh me: was editor of American Way when Asimov wrote a column for them me: and he quit in protest when they ended the column me: he also knew Anthony Burgess

Anonymous: nice
Anonymous: http://www.multivax.com/last_question.html Anonymous: my favorite asimov me: yes, read it me: I stopped reading Asimov when I found Frank Herbert and Heinlein, though me: Heinlein was kind of a jackass me: but me: he was a revolutionary force Anonymous: yeah
me: in fact me: there's the Heinlein Foundation me: I'll make contact me: guarantee we'll get good recruits from them Anonymous: that would be awesome me: I just made a list of additional groups to get in touch with Anonymous: ahh, coming up on midnight sir me: my ex-girlfriend works for TED me: okay
me: adios
Anonymous: ive got to get up at 7 in the morning Anonymous: to get ready for the rally Anonymous: ive got to get my speechifyin on me: good luck with that Anonymous: everyone else is writing shit heh Anonymous: i dont get it me: talk to you tomorrow Anonymous: im going to grab the mic and freestyle
me: lol
me: well done, honkey Anonymous: :P
Anonymous: goodnight me: word
